1966 WORLD CUP SERIES

The 1966 World Cup was hosted, and ultimately won by England. A large number of Commonwealth countries issued a stamp which was the same design but 2 different country specific values and with green and blue main colours. England issued a set that was not used by any other country and included an overprint which was issued after the English victory in the final. Seven stamps that were initially printed for Aden were overprinted twice, once with a South Arabia overprint and secondly with CHAMPION:ENGLAND or FOOTBALL 1966. All had currency overprints which differed from the original printing.
