Album Contents

This album contains United States general postage issues for the years 2000 through 2009.

Album Organization

This album is organized by year of issue and within year of issue by definitives followed by commemoratives. Exceptions to this ordering occur when variants of a particular stamp were issued over a period of years. In such cases all the variants appear in the first year of issue. Additionally, if a series, such as Prominent Americans was issued over a period of years, the whole series appears in the first year of issue. Within this broad organization, the stamps are generally arranged in Scott catalog number order (though the catalog numbers do not appear). Deviations from Scott catalog number ordering occur for such things as page aesthetics, grouping stamp formats (e.g. booklet panes), and keeping variant types together.

Optional Capabilities

The album includes a number of formats/categories of stamps which you may wish to exclude from the album you print for yourself. The ALBUM GENERATION OPTIONS discussion which follows these notes in the .txt file explain how to do this customization.

33¢ Space Shuttle Program

33¢ 'Cats' Broadwy Show

33¢ San Francisco 49ers

33¢ American Hostages Freed

Space shuttles have transformed U.S. space exploration. These reusable crafts can launch satellites and house labs for scientific experiments. Columbia, the first space shuttle, was launched April 12, 1981.

CELEBRATE THE CENTURY – 1980s

On August 2, 1990, Iraq invaded and occupied Kuwait. After negotiations failed, Operation Desert Storm was launched on January 17, 1991. Multinational forces led by the U.S. liberated Kuwait within six weeks.

CELEBRATE THE CENTURY – 1990s

The San Francisco 49ers were the most successful football team of the 1980s. Led by their high-powered "West Coast" offense, the 49ers won four Super Bowls between 1982 and 1990.

CELEBRATE THE CENTURY – 1980s

On November 4, 1979, Iranian militants seized the U.S. embassy in Tehran, taking hostages. Following prolonged negotiations, the hostage crisis came to an end after 444 days.

CELEBRATE THE CENTURY – 1980s

33¢ Figure Skating

33¢ Cable TV

33¢ Vietnam Veterans Memorial

33¢ Compact Discs

Figure skating gained popularity during the 1980s as fans eagerly followed national and international rivalries. Americans captured nine World Championships, and American men won the gold medal in 1984 and 1988.

CELEBRATE THE CENTURY – 1980s

The cable TV industry expanded rapidly in the 1980s. Satellite transmission, coupled with advancements in cable technology, allowed a wider variety of programming, including channels devoted specifically to news, movies, or sports.

CELEBRATE THE CENTURY – 1980s

Designed by Maya Lin and dedicated on November 13, 1982, the Vietnam Veterans Memorial in Washington, D.C., displays the names of the more than 58,000 Americans who died in the Vietnam War or are listed as missing.

CELEBRATE THE CENTURY – 1980s

First marketed in the U.S. in 1983, compact discs (CDs) dramatically changed the music industry. With features such as durability, convenience, and sound quality, CDs outsold records by the end of the decade.

2000 Celebration of the Century - 1980's (continued)

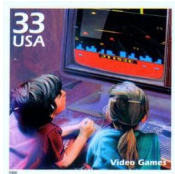

33¢ Cabbage Patch Kids

33¢ The Cosby Show

33¢ Fall of the Berlin Wall

33¢ Video Games

Homely and lovable, Cabbage Patch Kids® were the surprising toy success of the 1983-84 holiday season when they set off a shopping frenzy. In an increasingly electronic era, the low-tech "adoptable" dolls were a welcome change.
CELEBRATE THE CENTURY – 1980s

Debuting in 1984, "The Cosby Show" became TV's top-rated program the next year, remaining at number one for five straight seasons. The Huxtables were African-American professionals who used warmth and humor to raise their five children.
CELEBRATE THE CENTURY – 1980s

Built in 1961 to prevent citizens from fleeing communist East Germany to the West, the Berlin Wall symbolized the Cold War. When travel restrictions were suddenly lifted November 9, 1989, Germans celebrated the end of Berlin's division.
CELEBRATE THE CENTURY – 1980s

With the rise in popularity of video games, Americans spent more than 20 billion quarters and countless hours in arcades in 1981 alone. Home video games, with consoles plugged into TVs, turned living rooms into personal arcades.
CELEBRATE THE CENTURY – 1980s

33¢ ET The Extra-Terrestrial Movie

33¢ Personal Computers

33¢ Hip-Hop Culture

"E.T." tells the story of a boy who befriends a stranded space alien and helps him "phone home." Winner of four Academy Awards® and one of the most beloved films of all time, "E.T." held the record as the top-grossing film for 15 years.
CELEBRATE THE CENTURY – 1980s

During the 1980s, personal computers from companies such as Tandy, Commodore, Apple, and IBM revolutionized desktops. Home and office users could run business software, play games, or even write their own programs.
CELEBRATE THE CENTURY – 1980s

Created predominantly by African-American and Latino youths from the South Bronx, hip-hop culture—including rapping, break dancing, DJing, and graffiti—spread across the U.S. and world, influencing dance, music, language, and fashion.
CELEBRATE THE CENTURY – 1980s

United States of America

2000 Celebration of the Century - 1990's

33¢ New Baseball Records

The pursuit of three important and long-standing records thrilled Major League Baseball® fans. Players set new marks for career strikeouts, consecutive games played, and home runs in a single season.

CELEBRATE THE CENTURY – 1990s

33¢ Gulf War

On August 2, 1990, Iraq invaded and occupied Kuwait. After negotiations failed, Operation Desert Storm was launched on January 17, 1991. Multinational forces led by the U.S. liberated Kuwait within six weeks.

CELEBRATE THE CENTURY – 1990s

33¢ Sitcom Sensation: Seinfeld

A New York stand-up comic and his eccentric friends entertained viewers for nine seasons on "Seinfeld," an award-winning sitcom "about nothing" that gave fans an offbeat and hilarious look at city life.

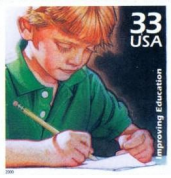

CELEBRATE THE CENTURY – 1990s

33¢ Extreme Sports

Extreme sports added an element of adventure and increased risk to the sports world. Daredevil sports such as aggressive inline skating, BMX biking, snowboarding, and street luge achieved greater popularity.

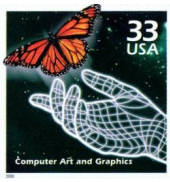

CELEBRATE THE CENTURY – 1990s

33¢ Improving Education

Across the U.S., improving the quality of education was a priority for educators, parents, and legislators. Key approaches included setting high standards, reducing class size, supporting teachers, and creating access to new technology.

CELEBRATE THE CENTURY – 1990s

33¢ Computer Art & Graphics

Electronic art and computer-generated animation gained popularity. Artists, graphic designers, and moviemakers used software and powerful, more affordable computers to create everything from abstract paintings to cinematic special effects.

CELEBRATE THE CENTURY – 1990s

33¢ Peregrine Falcon

Coordinated efforts led to the recovery of some animals that once were endangered or threatened. In the 1990s, two peregrine falcon subspecies—arctic and American—were removed from the Endangered Species List.

CELEBRATE THE CENTURY – 1990s

33¢ Return to Space

In 1962, aboard the Mercury Friendship 7, John Glenn became the first American to orbit Earth. His 1998 return to space at age 77, on the shuttle Discovery, heightened interest in the space program.

33¢ Special Olympics

33¢ Virtual Reality

33¢ Tyrannosaurus Rex

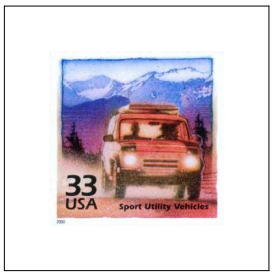

33¢ 'Titanic'

In 1998, Special Olympics marked its 30th anniversary. The organization provides year-round sports training and competition for children and adults with mental retardation, giving them opportunities to develop physical fitness and demonstrate courage.
CELEBRATE THE CENTURY – 1990s

Employing computers and interface devices such as data gloves and head-mounted displays, virtual reality created three-dimensional "virtual" worlds used in video games and in applications ranging from architecture to surgery.
CELEBRATE THE CENTURY – 1990s

Cloned dinosaurs terrorized visitors at an island theme park in the 1993 hit "Jurassic Park." Noted for its stunning, lifelike creatures, the Steven Spielberg-directed film won Academy Awards® for Best Visual Effects, Best Sound, and Best Sound Effects Editing.
CELEBRATE THE CENTURY – 1990s

Adding romance and elaborate special effects to the tragic story of the ill-fated luxury liner, James Cameron's 1997 film "Titanic"™ was a colossal success at box offices worldwide and won 11 Academy Awards®, including Best Picture.
CELEBRATE THE CENTURY – 1990s

33¢ Sport Utility Vehicles

33¢ World Wide Web

33¢ Cell Phones

Originally designed for off-road driving, sport utility vehicles became commonplace on city and suburban streets. Offering versatility, comfort, and a rugged image, SUVs were a popular choice for American families and commuters.
CELEBRATE THE CENTURY – 1990s

The World Wide Web brought the text-based Internet to life by adding pictures, sound, and video. Millions of people accessed the Internet with user-friendly Web browsers for business, entertainment, and educational purposes.
CELEBRATE THE CENTURY – 1990s

The popularity of cellular phones skyrocketed as the phones became smaller and cheaper, sound quality improved, and service became more widely available. In 1999, more than 78 million Americans had cellular service.

Among the finest daguerreotypists of their day, Albert Sands Southworth (1811–1894) and Josiah Johnson Hawes (1808–1901) achieved international prominence for their captivating portraits and views. Their Boston studio's eminent clients included Senator Daniel Webster; this c.1850 portrait of the statesman and political orator vividly captured his indomitable character.

Timothy H. O'Sullivan (1840–1882), known for his Civil War pictures and western landscapes, was a field photographer highly regarded for his daring compositional style based on technical proficiency and visual artistry. He made this photograph of General Ulysses S. Grant and his officers on May 21, 1864, looking down from a window of Massaponax Church in Virginia.

Library of Congress
Washington, D.C.

One of the best landscape photographers of the 19th century, Carleton E. Watkins (1829–1916) used a specially constructed mammoth-plate camera to record the scenic grandeur and burgeoning development of the American West. Cape Horn, Columbia River, 1867, reveals his refined artistic vision, extraordinary eye for composition, and flawless technique.

Oregon Historical Society
Portland, Oregon

Eminent portrait photographer Gertrude Käsebier (1852–1934), whose best known images are those of mothers and children, pioneered an evocative soft-focus style that established her as a guiding force in the pictorialist movement. Blessed Art Thou Among Women—a sensitive and artistic portrayal of author Agnes Rand Lee and her daughter Peggy—was made in 1899.

Documentary photographer Lewis W. Hine (1874–1940) also achieved fame as a social reformer. Best known for pictures of immigrants, child laborers, and industrial workers, Hine viewed his subjects with compassion and their harsh surroundings with an unflinching eye. Looking for Lost Baggage, Ellis Island, 1905, captured the uncertain hope of newly arrived immigrants.

George Eastman House
Rochester, New York

An innovative photographic artist, Alvin Langdon Coburn (1882–1966) utilized soft-focus techniques, unusual perspectives, and abstract compositions. The Octopus, 1912—made by looking down on Madison Square Park from atop a Manhattan skyscraper—is an early example of modern photography that expresses the visual dynamic of the new metropolis.

George Eastman House
Rochester, New York

A remarkably versatile photographer, Edward Steichen (1879–1973) played a pivotal role in elevating photography to a fine art. Lotus, Mount Kisco, New York, 1915, reveals his mastery of the medium, as well as his belief that the forms found in nature helped validate the turn toward abstraction in early 20th-century art.

George Eastman House
Rochester, New York

A seminal figure in American art and photography, Alfred Stieglitz (1864–1946) championed the idea of photography as a distinct art medium and continually challenged its technical limits and pictorial conventions. Hands and Thimble, 1920, is one of more than 300 images he made over the course of 20 years that together form an extended portrait of the painter Georgia O'Keeffe, whom he married in 1924.

Man Ray (1890–1976), an artist who worked in all media, expanded the limits of photography with innovations such as the cameraless images he called rayographs, made by placing objects on photographic paper and exposing the arrangement to light. The mazelike spiral design in Rayograph, 1923, shows his imaginative method of creating abstract pictures.

Edward Weston (1886–1958), an early proponent for the unmanipulated, sharp-focused realism of "straight" photography, sought to capture the quintessence of his subjects. Acclaimed for the tonal beauty and technical precision of his landscapes, nudes, portraits, and still lifes, Weston made many photographs—including Two Shells, 1927—that are considered icons of modernism.

James VanDerZee (1886–1983) was the preeminent African-American portrait photographer in New York City between the two World Wars. Commissioned by celebrities and ordinary people alike, as well as by organizations, his formal portraits and group pictures captured the vitality of the Harlem Renaissance. His distinctive pictorial style is evident in My Corsage, 1931.

Donna Mussenden VanDerZee
New York, New York

A deeply compassionate documentary photographer, Dorothea Lange (1895–1965) is best known for her compelling pictures of the unemployed and uprooted victims of the Great Depression. With an empathetic eye she recorded not only their impoverished circumstances, but also their fortitude and spirit. Ditched, Stalled, and Stranded, San Joaquin Valley, California, 1935, reflects her intimate portrait style.

Walker Evans (1903–1975) found beauty in the commonplace and turned documentary photography into an art form. Made during the summer of 1936, his now classic photographs of three sharecroppers, their homes, and their families—which were published in the eloquent book Let Us Now Praise Famous Men—are emblematic of how we have come to visualize the austerity of the Great Depression.

Library of Congress
Washington, D.C.

Highly respected for his brilliant and compassionate photo-essays, W. Eugene Smith (1918–1978) was one of America's most acclaimed photojournalists. During World War II, he gained a reputation for pictures that showed both the horror of war and the heroism of soldiers under fire, including Frontline Soldier with Canteen, Saipan, June 1944.

Center for Creative Photography
Tucson, Arizona

Paul Strand (1890–1976), whose cubist, nearly abstract photographs broke new ground during the second decade of the 20th century, applied a similar geometric complexity to the broad range of straight photography that he advocated thereafter. Steeple, 1946, from his book Time in New England, is typical of Strand's modernist compositional style, emphasizing form, light, and space.

Renowned art photographer and environmental leader Ansel Adams (1902–1984) was praised for his sublime interpretations of the dramatic beauty found in the western landscape. Rendered with a naturalist's precision and a pictorialist's virtuosity, Sand Dunes, Sunrise, 1948, reveals the sharpness of detail and rich tonal range—from deepest black to purest white—that are hallmarks of his work.

A photographer of exceptional sensibility and one of the founders of modernist photography, Imogen Cunningham (1883–1976) is best known for plant studies and portraits. In a departure from her earlier romantic pictorial style, she began making sharply focused, realistic photographs in the 1920s. Age and Its Symbols, 1958, a portrait of Ida C. Pabst, is compelling for its revealing personal intimacy.

By combining simple, personal observation with compassionate interest in the human condition, Hungarian-born André Kertész (1894–1985) made carefully balanced yet spontaneous photographs infused with the appealing brightness and wit he found in the urban experience. The dramatic play between pattern and deep space in this New York cityscape reveals Kertész's mastery of complex composition.

Estate of André Kertész

Fascinated with photographing people on the street, Garry Winogrand (1928–1984) originated an approach to candid photography that extended the scope of the documentary tradition. This 1965 work is typical of Winogrand's whimsical view of contemporary urban life: the random mixing of pedestrians, their chance gestures, and the interactions of men and women.

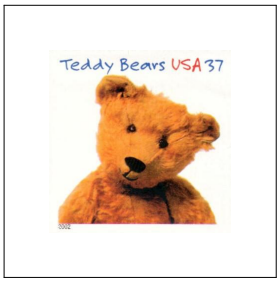

Fraenkel Gallery
San Francisco, California

A major figure in the expressive movement in art photography, Minor White (1908–1976) was an innovative photographer intent on conveying deep personal feelings through his work. Committed as well to the spiritual and the sacred in art, White excelled in using symbolic representation, as depicted in Bristol, Vermont, 1971. The arrow on this snowy road represents the concept of passage.

SCREENWRITING

From low-budget B movies to epics like Gone with the Wind, every film starts with a blueprint: the script. The screenwriter's work provides the foundation for all that follows in the making of a movie.

DIRECTING

Great directors leave their stamp on every film they make. As they translate scripts into cinematic terms—often framing shots, like John Cassavetes—they guide actors and crews through the filmmaking process.

COSTUME DESIGN

In films, clothes definitely make the man—or woman. Costume design, as practiced by Edith Head and other artists, is essential to the fashioning of definable and believable characters.

37¢ Music

37¢ Makeup

37¢ Art Direction

MUSIC

Ever since the days of silent films, music has made an enormous contribution to motion pictures. It builds mood, enhances atmosphere, sets the tone, and is as vital to a movie as any character on the screen.

MAKEUP

Movie makeup artists can turn actors into almost anything or anybody. Pioneering artist Jack Pierce, for example, gave actor Boris Karloff the frightening visage of Frankenstein's monster.

ART DIRECTION

An art director, such as Citizen Kane's Perry Ferguson, creates the setting in which a story unfolds, persuading moviegoers that what they see—whether ordinary or incredible—is real.

37¢ Special Effects

CINEMATOGRAPHY

The art of cinematography—what the camera sees and how it filters that information—involves capturing and interpreting images, from the mundane to the magnificent, on film.

FILM EDITING

The film editor works with the director to give a motion picture its final shape. Carefully cutting and rearranging raw footage, the editor puts a film together scene by scene.

SPECIAL EFFECTS

Special effects artists translate filmmakers' ideas—a Kansas tornado, a sinking ocean liner, an alien named E.T., for example—into cinematic reality, advancing their craft with each new challenge.

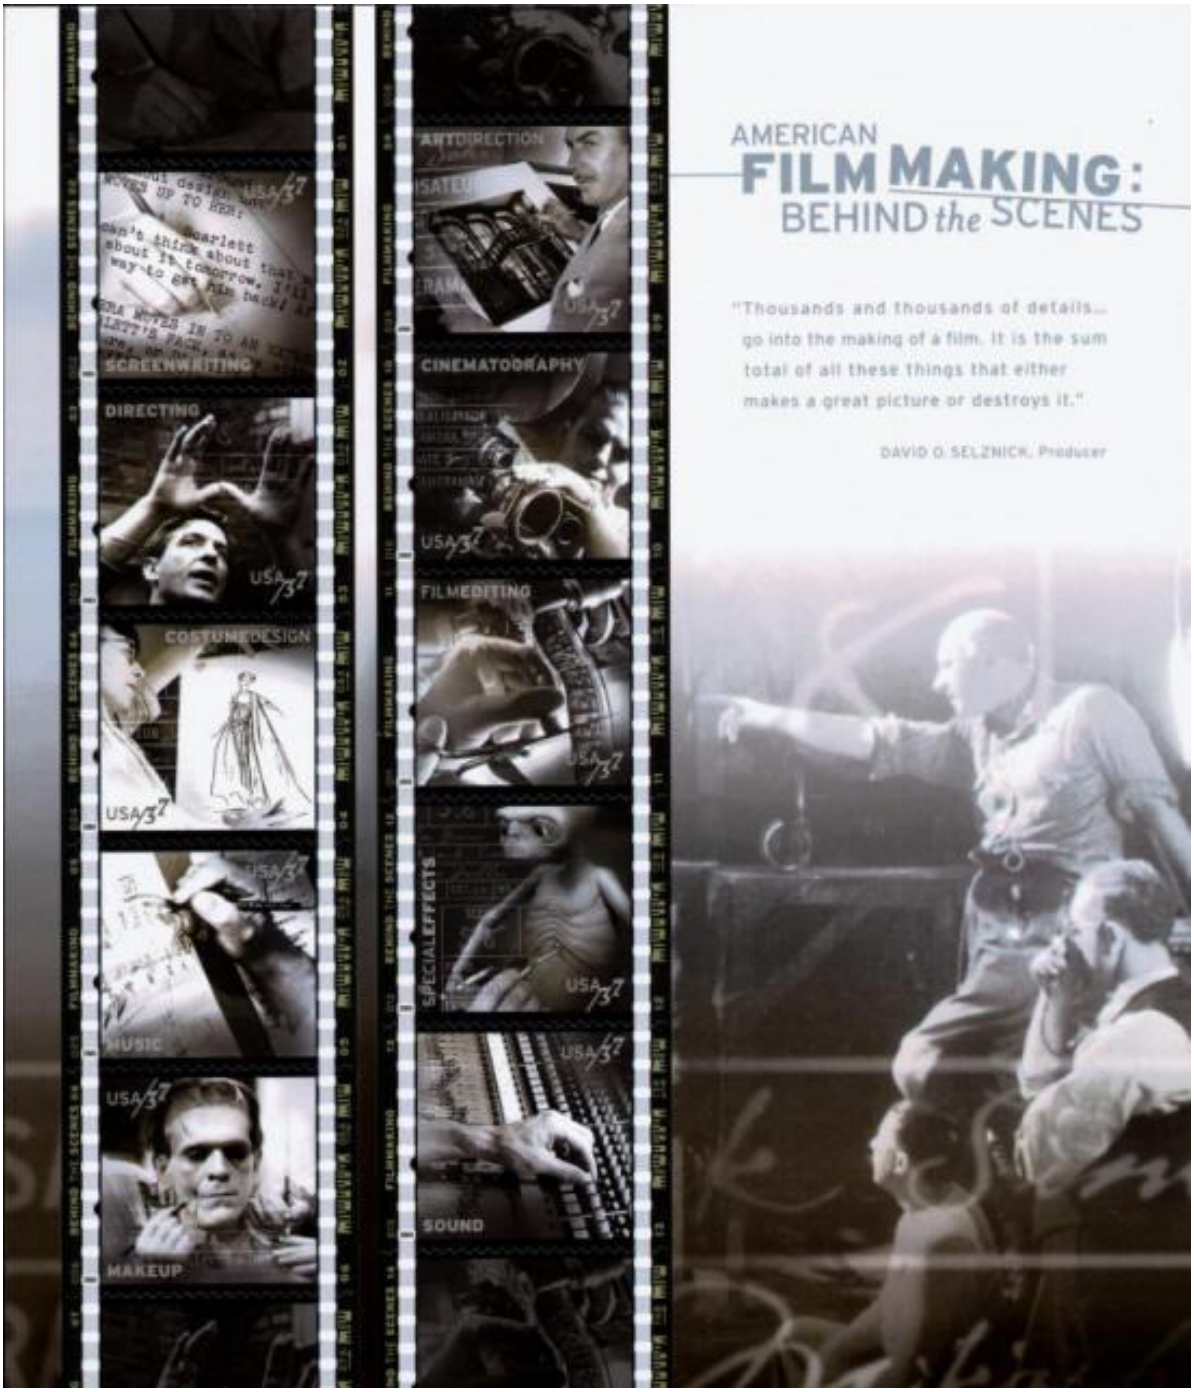

37¢ Sound

SOUND

Creating a movie sound track—a seamless combination of dialogue, music, and sound effects—involves many stops along the way, from the initial recording on the set to sophisticated sound mixing and editing.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN, STATESMAN

Deeply involved in politics and civic life, Benjamin Franklin served in the Continental Congress and signed both the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution. Often considered America's first diplomat, Franklin negotiated an alliance with France and helped to secure a peace treaty with Great Britain.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN, SCIENTIST

Remembered for the pursuits he called "philosophical amusements," Benjamin Franklin was intensely curious about natural phenomena. His observations and experiments in areas such as electricity and meteorology resulted in interesting inventions, including a heating stove, the lightning rod, and an early electrical battery.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN, PRINTER

From his childhood apprenticeship in Boston to his career in Philadelphia as an adult, Benjamin Franklin enjoyed a lifelong association with printing. In addition to the Pennsylvania Gazette and Poor Richard's Almanack, his presses also printed a wide range of materials such as government pamphlets, religious tracts, currency, and books.

B. FREE FRANKLIN, POSTMASTER

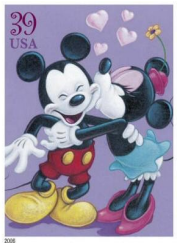

Benjamin Franklin was vital to the organization of the American postal system, serving as postmaster of Philadelphia and a deputy postmaster for the American colonies before being appointed postmaster general by the Continental Congress in 1775. He marked postage-free letters with his unique personal signature: "B. Free Franklin."

2006 The Art of Disney - Romance

Mickey and Minnie Mouse
Mickey and Minnie Mouse have been sweethearts for many years, yet they still have that first-date feeling. Seeing this celebrated couple, we can all take heart; they prove that sometimes the course of love can indeed run smooth.

39¢ Mickey & Minnie Mouse

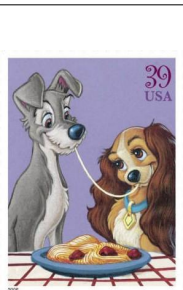

Cinderella and Prince Charming
Everyone dreams of living a rags-to-riches fairy tale and dancing with that special someone. As Cinderella and Prince Charming learn, one waltz can lead to a moment of realization: "So this is love."

39¢ Cinderella & Prince Charming

Beauty and the Beast
This is the evening the Beast has awaited, but can he tell Belle of his love? He knows his heart, but does she yet know her own? These lovers are as uncertain as they are hopeful—emotions and a tale "as old as time."

39¢ Beauty & Thge Beast

Lady and Tramp
First dates can be full of risks—and ordering spaghetti only complicates matters. Fortunately for Lady and Tramp, a plate of pasta leads to a memorable kiss, turning a simple dinner out into a wonderful "Bella Notte."

2006 DC Comics Superheroes

Superman
Art by Curt Swan & Sheldon Moldoff
Ever since his debut in the pages of Action Comics #1 (June 1938), the Superman character created by Jerry Siegel and Joe Shuster has been an icon. The big red "S" on his shirt is among the most recognized symbols in American pop culture.

39¢ Superman

Green Lantern
Art by Neal Adams
In 1970, writer Dennis O'Neil and artist Neal Adams launched a new era of relevance in comics, crafting stories in which the Green Lantern—accompanied by his friend, Green Arrow—addressed important issues then considered taboo for the typical "comic book."

39¢ Green Lantern

Wonder Woman
Art by Ross Andru & Mike Esposito
Wonder Woman has been an iconic inspiration for countless women since her debut in All Star Comics #8 in December 1941. The most recognizable female character in comics, created by William Moulton Marston, she remains a figure of strength, beauty, and courage.

39¢ Wonder Woman

Green Arrow
Art by Jack Kirby & Mike Royer
Green Arrow made his debut in More Fun Comics #73 (November 1941). Since then, the Emerald Archer's most notable escapades were in stories drawn by legendary comics creator Jack Kirby in Adventure Comics #250-256 and World's Finest Comics #96-99 (spanning 1958-1959).

39¢ Green Arrow

Batman
Art by Jim Lee & Scott Williams
After the brutal murder of his parents, young Bruce Wayne mastered nearly every known form of combat and employed his vast wealth to equip himself with the tools essential to his crime-fighting crusade as Gotham City's Dark Knight, Batman.

39¢ Batman

The Flash
Art by Carmine Infantino & Murphy Anderson
An explosive mixture of lightning and laboratory chemicals endowed police scientist Barry Allen with superhuman speed, transforming him into The "Silver Age" Flash, the Fastest Man Alive. The Scarlet Speedster was first set into motion in Showcase #4 (September/October 1956).

39¢ The Flash

Plastic Man
Art by Dick Giordano
Eel O'Brian was a small-time gangster before an accident at a chemical plant gave him the uncanny ability to stretch and alter his shape at will. Renouncing his criminal past, O'Brian became Plastic Man, the longest arm of the law.

39¢ Plastic Man

Aquaman
Art by Jim Aparo
The memories of Aquaman's personal tragedies run deep after he loses his son, his wife, and his monarchy. Nevertheless, the former King of the Seven Seas remains determined to protect both the Atlanteans and surface dwellers from those who endanger them.

39¢ Aquaman

United States of America

2006 DC Comics Superheroes (continued)

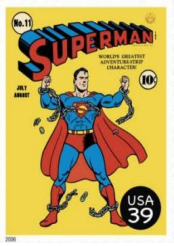

39¢ Supergirl

Supergirl
Art by Curt Swan & Stan Kaye
An impressionable teenager when she first arrived on Earth, Supergirl operated as her cousin Superman's "secret weapon" while adjusting to life on her new planet. Eventually, her existence was revealed to the world, which welcomed the Girl of Steel with open arms.

39¢ Hawkman

Hawkman
Art by Murphy Anderson
Powered by the mysterious "Nth metal" in his artificial wings, Hawkman soars through the sky above Midway City. When grounding the city's worst predators, the Winged Wonder relies on his mastery of Earth's ancient weapons, among them his mace and shield.

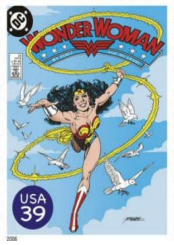

39¢ Superman
Comic Book Cover

Superman #11
July/Aug. 1941
Art by Fred Ray
Destiny brought the infant Kal-El from Planet Krypton to Smallville, USA, where he was raised by kindly farmers. Though gifted with extraordinary powers, Kal-El—now Clark Kent—expresses true strength in the compassion and moral responsibility he displays in the guise of Superman.

39¢ Green Lantern
Comic Book Cover

Green Lantern #4
Jan./Feb. 1961
Art by Gil Kane & Joe Giella
As readers entered the Space Age, so did comics. Ace test pilot Hal Jordan took flight as Green Lantern, a galactic peace officer with an emerald power ring that could create virtually anything. Willpower and fearlessness marked Jordan as a hero for the times.

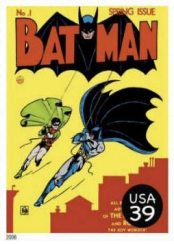

39¢ Wonder Woman
Comic Book Cover

Wonder Woman #22 (2nd series)
Nov. 1988
Art by George Pérez
As a worldwide ambassador of peace, Wonder Woman soared to new heights in the late 1980s. The character returned to her roots as an Amazon warrior from Paradise Island, land of heroic women. Her special powers were gifts from the Olympians.

39¢ Green Arrow
Comic Book Cover

Green Arrow #15
Sept. 2002
Art by Matt Wagner
Trapped on a deserted island, billionaire playboy Oliver Queen learned to hunt with a bow and arrow. He escaped and became Green Arrow, a modern-day Robin Hood who uses his unparalleled skill as an archer on behalf of the underprivileged.

39¢ Batman
Comic Book Cover

Batman #1
Spring 1940
Art by Bob Kane
Batman made his debut in Detective Comics #27 in May 1939 before swinging into action—with Robin, the Boy Wonder, by his side—in his own series in the spring of 1940. The Dark Knight's distinguishing characteristics were intellect, skill, and grim determination.

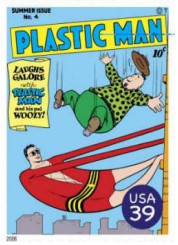

39¢ The Flash
Comic Book Cover

The Flash #111
Feb./Mar. 1960
Art by Carmine Infantino & Joe Giella
The Flash is capable of moving at speeds so great he can make himself invisible or travel through time and between dimensions. His fast-paced adventures highlight pseudo-science while pitting the hero against an extensive "Rogues' Gallery" of villains.

39¢ Plastic Man
Comic Book Cover

Plastic Man #4
Summer 1946
Art by Jack Cole
Cartoonist Jack Cole flexed his creative muscles with the always pliable, ever-reliable Plastic Man, who debuted in August 1941. Cole enjoyed a 15-year stretch experimenting with fun, unique story twists and graphics for his expandable protagonist and stout sidekick, Woozy Winks.

39¢ Aquaman
Comic Book Cover

Aquaman #5 (of 5)
Oct. 1989
Art by Curt Swan & Al Vey
Aquaman defends both land and sea with great strength, speed, and the ability to communicate telepathically with all marine life. His ultimate goal is to help both realms put aside their natural prejudices and unite in peaceful coexistence.

39¢ Supergirl
Comic Book Cover

The Daring New Adventures of Supergirl #1
Nov. 1982
Art by Rich Buckler & Dick Giordano
Moments before the destruction of Argo City, Kara Zor-El was rocketed to Earth and reunited with her cousin Kal-El, the hero known throughout the galaxy as Superman. Developing incredible powers and abilities, Kara chose to follow her cousin's example and fight for good.

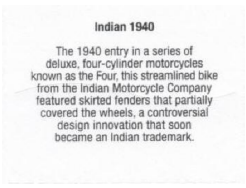

39¢ Hawkman
Comic Book Cover

The Brave And The Bold #36
June/July 1961
Art by Joe Kubert
Hawkman returned in 1960, a reincarnated hero from the earlier "Golden Age" of comics. The new Winged Wonder and his spouse Hawkgirl were intergalactic police officers from a distant planet, meting out justice to the villains terrorizing Midway City.

2007 Star Wars

41¢ Darth Vader

After Anakin Skywalker is seduced by the dark side, he becomes a terrifying union of man and machine, Darth Vader. Hidden behind dark robes and fearsome armor, he spreads terror as one of Emperor Palpatine's most trusted servants. While commanding the lead Star Destroyer in the massive Imperial Fleet, Vader is determined to hunt down and destroy the Rebel Alliance just as he wiped out the Jedi. But when he tries to lure his son, Rebel hero Luke Skywalker, to the dark side, the sight of Luke writhing in agony at the hands of the Emperor prompts him to sacrifice himself, destroying the Emperor and finally allowing Anakin to reemerge from the darkness.

41¢ Millenium Falcon

41¢ Emperor Palpatine

Despite its battered appearance, the Millennium Falcon is famous for slick maneuvers and dangerously close escapes. Won by Han Solo in a game of sabacc from gambler Lando Calrissian, the customized Corellian freighter has been upgraded with military-level weaponry and is equipped with an unpredictable hyperdrive system that, when functional, comes in handy for smuggling—or for avoiding any Imperial entanglements.

After manipulating the corrupt bureaucracy of the Republic into his personal Empire, Emperor Palpatine instills fear across the galaxy. Twisted by greed, ambition, and power, the tyrannical Sith Lord joins his apprentice, Darth Vader, in attempting to turn Luke Skywalker to the dark side of the Force, a move that ultimately leads to the Emperor's destruction—and the triumph of good over evil.

41¢ Anakin Skywalker and Obi-Wan Kenobi

41¢ Luke Skywalker

41¢ Princess Leia and R2-D2

When the Republic falls, the greatest fear of Obi-Wan Kenobi is realized: his former apprentice Anakin Skywalker has turned to the dark side and been named Darth Vader, Dark Lord of the Sith. Obi-Wan confronts his old friend on the volcanic lava planet of Mustafar, where their fierce lightsaber duel leaves a severely wounded Anakin dying on the charred gravel of a hellish world—and forever changes the destiny of the galaxy.

As a simple moisture farmer on the desert planet Tatooine, Luke Skywalker dreams of adventures among the stars. When a distress call from Princess Leia leads him to Obi-Wan Kenobi, he takes his first steps into a much larger world, joining the epic struggle between the Rebel Alliance and the Galactic Empire. As he learns the ways of the Force, Luke becomes a new hope for an embattled galaxy, but first he must face the evil Emperor—and his own darkest fears.

An accomplished senator and daughter of the royal family of Alderaan, Princess Leia Organa becomes the strong-willed heroine of the Rebel Alliance, serving as a symbol of diplomacy, strength, and hope. Shortly before her capture by the Empire, Princess Leia manages to smuggle a plea for help to Jedi Knight Obi-Wan Kenobi through the astromech droid R2-D2. The resourceful Artoo leads his new owner, Luke Skywalker, straight to Obi-Wan, ensuring Luke's destiny as a hero of the Rebellion.

41¢ C-3PO

Fluent in over six million forms of communication, protocol droid C-3PO is an essential companion to Luke Skywalker and an asset to the Rebel Alliance. Rarely seen without his counterpart, R2-D2, the fretful and anxious Threepio has no delusions of grandeur, but he frequently finds himself in the midst of the action. He is vital to rescue missions, first on the Death Star and later in the court of Jabba the Hutt, and his dramatic retelling of the Galactic Civil War persuades the Ewoks to fight in the final, decisive battle against the Empire.

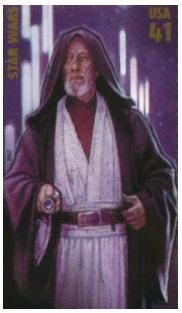

41¢ Queen Padme Amidala

Elected ruler of Naboo at only 14, Queen Padmé Amidala later serves as a Senator; her outspoken nature is a beacon of reason in an increasingly fragmented Senate. Hiding her love for and marriage to Jedi Knight Anakin Skywalker, she fears for her husband during the Clone Wars and is haunted by the impending demise of the crumbling Republic, not yet aware that she carries a new hope for the future within her: twin children, Luke and Leia.

41¢ Darth Maul

Once a noble warrior in the days of the Old Republic, Obi-Wan Kenobi retreats to the desert planet of Tatooine after the fall of the Jedi. There he watches over the young Luke Skywalker, who is destined to play a crucial role in the Rebellion. Obi-Wan begins Luke's training in the ways of the Force, initiating a journey that takes them both to the Empire's dreaded Death Star. When Obi-Wan faces his old apprentice Darth Vader, he sacrifices himself to ensure Luke's escape—and the eventual return of the Jedi.

When Obi-Wan faces his old apprentice Darth Vader, he sacrifices himself to ensure Luke's escape—and the eventual return of the Jedi.

With a fearsome appearance that testifies to the evil raging within, the Sith Lord Darth Maul wields his double-bladed lightsaber with deadly grace. When this terrifying apprentice of Darth Sidious battles two formidable Jedi Knights, he proves to be Qui-Gon Jinn's most dangerous adversary, but the young Obi-Wan Kenobi permanently ends Maul's vicious rage.

41¢ Chewbacca and Han Solo

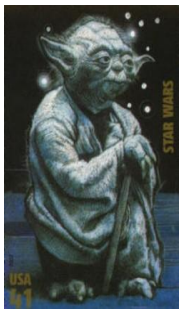

41¢ X0wing Starfighter

Quick-thinking and skilled with a blaster, Han Solo is a smuggler, space pirate, and captain of the Millennium Falcon. When he and his Wookiee first mate, Chewbacca, are hired to transport Luke Skywalker and Obi-Wan Kenobi, Han becomes involved in the rescue of Princess Leia. Enamored with Leia and drawn to her cause, Han finds a focus for his flyboy talents. No longer a reckless adventurer, he becomes one of the Rebellion's most courageous heroes.

The X-wing starfighter is equipped with laser cannons, proton torpedoes, deflector shields, a hyperdrive engine, and an astromech droid. Versatile and durable, the X-wing plays a key role in the war against the Empire, most notably during the Battle of Yavin, when Luke Skywalker destroys the original Death Star and achieves the first major victory for the Rebel Alliance.

41¢ Yoda

41¢ Stormtroopers

Although diminutive and unassuming, Yoda is a respected member of the Jedi Council and has no equal in his keen insight into the Force. A wise teacher of young Jedi for 800 years—and remarkably agile with a lightsaber—Yoda goes into hiding on the swamp planet of Dagobah after the fall of the Republic. By ensuring his own survival, he helps his last apprentice, Luke Skywalker, to fulfill his destiny, thus honoring the Jedi legacy and finally restoring peace to the galaxy.

Abandoning individuality for conformity, stormtroopers represent the most visible extension of Imperial might. Deployed in overwhelming numbers, they put down insurrections and maintain oppressive order on the far-flung worlds of the Empire. Varying planetary conditions often call for specially trained and equipped units, such as the snowtroopers who besiege the ice world of Hoth and the lightly armored scout troopers who patrol the forests of Endor.

Diamond Head Lighthouse stands at the base of an extinct volcano on the Hawaiian island of Oahu. Established in 1899, the original tower was replaced by a new lighthouse in 1917. Today the light from this concrete sentinel leads vessels safely into the harbor of nearby Honolulu.

41¢ Diamond Head Lighthouse

From its location on a small island south of Juneau, Five Finger Lighthouse has guided ships through Alaska's scenic Frederick Sound since 1902. After fire destroyed the original wood station in 1933, a concrete, Art Deco-style tower and lantern were erected. The lighthouse was automated in 1984.

41¢ Five Finger Lighthouse

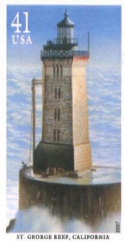

At 107 feet, Grays Harbor Lighthouse—also known as Westport Lighthouse—is the tallest lighthouse in the state of Washington and one of the tallest on the Pacific Coast. Dedicated in 1898, this white octagonal tower and its two oil houses continue to mark the harbor entrance.

41¢ Grays Harbor Lighthouse

Umpqua River Lighthouse replaced a previous tower destroyed by erosion. Dedicated in 1894, the new brick sentinel was erected on higher ground south of Reedsport, Oregon. Visible from a distance of 21 miles, the light from its first-order Fresnel lens flashes two white beams and one red.

41¢ Umpqua River Lighthouse

Perched on an exposed rock off the coast of northern California near Crescent City, St. George Reef Lighthouse took 10 years to build. From 1892 until its deactivation in 1975, the light from this concrete and granite tower warned vessels away from the hazardous reef hidden beneath the surface.

2008 American Scientists

Biochemist Gerty Cori (1896-1957), in collaboration with her husband, Carl, made important discoveries—including a new derivative of glucose—that elucidated the steps of carbohydrate metabolism and contributed to the understanding and treatment of diabetes and other metabolic diseases. In 1947, the couple was awarded a half share of the Nobel Prize in Physiology or Medicine.

41¢ Gerty Thersa Cori

A remarkably versatile scientist, structural chemist Linus Pauling (1901-1994) won the 1954 Nobel Prize in Chemistry for determining the nature of the chemical bond linking atoms into molecules. His work on protein structure was critical in establishing the field of molecular biology; his studies of hemoglobin led to the classification of sickle cell anemia as a molecular disease.

41¢ Linus Carl Pauling

Often called a "pioneer of the distant stars," astronomer Edwin Hubble (1889-1953) played a pivotal role in deciphering the vast and complex nature of the universe. His meticulous studies of spiral nebulae proved the existence of galaxies other than our own Milky Way. Had he not died suddenly in 1953, Hubble would have won that year's Nobel Prize in Physics.

41¢ Edwin Powell Hubble

Theoretical physicist John Bardeen (1908-1991) shared the Nobel Prize in Physics twice—in 1956, as co-inventor of the transistor and in 1972, for the explanation of superconductivity. The transistor paved the way for all modern electronics, from computers to microchips. Diverse applications of superconductivity currently include infrared sensors and medical imaging systems.

Martha Gellhorn
(1908–1998)

covered many major conflicts—among them the Spanish Civil War, World War II, and the Vietnam War—in a long career that broke new ground for women. With its constant focus on harm to civilians, her reportage is considered a morally courageous model.

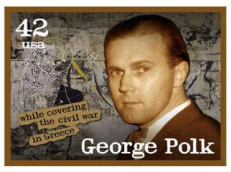

42¢ Martha Gellhorn

John Hersey
(1914–1993)

was a versatile writer whose most famous work, Hiroshima, describes what happened when the United States dropped an atomic bomb on the Japanese city that gave the book its title. It has been acclaimed as the greatest work of journalism of the 20th century.

42¢ John Hersey

George Polk
(1913–1948)

filed hard-hitting radio bulletins from Greece describing the strife that erupted there after World War II. He was working on reports of corruption involving U.S. aid when he disappeared; his body was found a week later. The exact circumstances of his death remain a mystery.

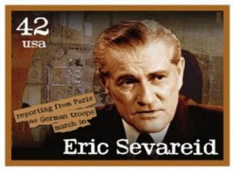

42¢ George Polk

Ruben Salazar
(1928–1970)

was the first Mexican-American journalist to have a major voice in mainstream news media. His writings on the Chicano movement of the 1960s add richly to the historical record. He was shot and killed by a deputy sheriff while covering a protest against the Vietnam War.

42¢ Reuben Salazar

Eric Sevareid
(1912–1992)

was a writer and broadcast journalist who provided memorable radio coverage of World War II, reporting on the approach of the Germans to Paris, the exodus from the city, and on life in London during wartime. His subsequent television commentary on American politics was widely admired.

Christmas Card

Charles and Ray Eames delighted friends and family during the holiday season with Christmas cards they designed themselves. The photograph they used in 1944 displays their affection and playful sense of humor. Ray mischievously holds an ornament above Charles's head. Behind them stands one of a number of molded plywood sculptures they created during the 1940s.

Crosspatch* Fabric Design

Crosspatch is one of two fabric designs submitted by the Eameses to a 1947 competition sponsored by The Museum of Modern Art in New York City. The colorful rows of blocks filled with either a cross or a dot recall traditional quilt designs as well as Ray's love of abstract art. She created the pattern in 1945.

Stacking Chairs

Introduced in 1955, the Eames stacking chairs feature single-shell seats made of plastic that comfortably support the body. Available in a variety of colors, the chairs are noted for their versatility. The simple design allows them to be stacked for storage or linked together in horizontal rows—a useful solution for temporary seating in public places.

Case Study House #8

Case Study House #8 was completed in 1949 as part of a program to create affordable homes out of materials and technology developed during World War II. Located in Pacific Palisades, California, the house is composed of two two-story structures made of steel and glass and connected by an open court. It was designated a National Historic Landmark in 2006.

Wire-Base Table

Charles and Ray Eames experimented with the use of wire rods in furniture for several years before introducing the wire-base table in 1950. The table features a plywood top supported by two U-shaped wire rods and steadied with metal cross-bracing. Portable and practical, the petite table is ready for use anytime, indoors or outdoors.

Lounge Chair and Ottoman

A recognizable symbol of 20th-century design, the lounge chair and ottoman modernized the traditional English armchair. Each piece is made of a molded plywood shell set atop a swivel base. Padded cushions add the "warm, receptive look of a well-used first baseman's mitt" that Charles Eames was trying to achieve. The 1956 design was an instant bestseller.

2009 Gulf Coast Lighthouses

Listed on the National Register of Historic Places in 1984, Matagorda Island Lighthouse has stood proudly for more than a century near Port O'Connor, Texas. The black conical tower—which was automated in 1956—is made of cast iron and features a solar-powered light.

Erected on soft, marshy ground in Louisiana, Sabine Pass Lighthouse features eight buttresses that stabilize the heavy brick structure and give it a distinct missile-like shape. Completed in 1856, the lighthouse was deactivated in 1952 and is currently closed to the public.

Of all the lighthouses that once stood in Mississippi, Biloxi Lighthouse is the only one still standing. Named to the National Register of Historic Places in 1973, the white, conical tower was built in 1848, making it one of the first cast-iron lighthouses in the South.

First lit in 1873, Sand Island Lighthouse was an active aid to navigation for 60 years. Once the central attraction on a 400-acre island off the coast of Alabama, this conical tower made of local brick now stands alone, its foundation completely surrounded by water.

Erected in 1876, Fort Jefferson Lighthouse (also known as Garden Key Lighthouse) helped warn sea traffic away from the dangerous shoals and reefs that surround the Florida Keys until it was deactivated in 1921. Today the hexagonal lighthouse is part of Dry Tortugas National Park.

Texaco Star Theater

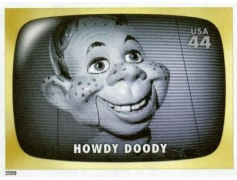

Comedian Milton Berle worked successfully in radio and film before moving to TV, where he became the new medium's first superstar. His show was known for his clowning, often in outlandish costume, and for the quartet that sang the sponsor's jingle ("Oh, we're the men of Texaco…"). Berle became known as "Mr. Television" and was credited with driving up television sales.

I Love Lucy

As bandleader Ricky Ricardo and his wife, Lucy, Desi Arnaz and his real-life spouse Lucille Ball waged a comedic battle of the sexes. William Frawley and Vivian Vance played their landlords and best friends, Fred and Ethel Mertz. Lucy and Ethel had wacky adventures like the one depicted in the stamp art, with Ethel (left) and Lucy trying to keep up with candies on a conveyor belt.

The Red Skelton Show

Red Skelton was already famous when he brought his store of funny faces and voices to television with this long-running show. He played comic characters such as country boy Clem Kadiddlehopper, boxer Cauliflower McPugg, and Junior the "mean widdle kid," whose phrase "I dood it!" became popular with viewers. One of his most popular characters, Freddie the Freeloader, is shown in the stamp art.

Howdy Doody

Featuring live-action characters and marionettes, Howdy Doody entertained baby boomers and helped sell television sets to their parents. Puppet Howdy (pictured in the stamp art) and other residents of Doodyville performed before a live audience of children known as the peanut gallery. Each episode began with a question—"Say, kids, what time is it?"—answered by the children in unison: "It's Howdy Doody time!"

Dragnet

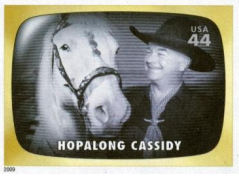

Between the memorable opening notes of its theme and the concluding details about the fate of its villains, this police procedural emphasized the day-to-day drudgery of detective work instead of pulse-pounding action. Series creator Jack Webb, who starred as Sgt. Joe Friday (pictured in the stamp art), told a reporter, "We try to make it as real as a guy pouring a cup of coffee."

Lassie

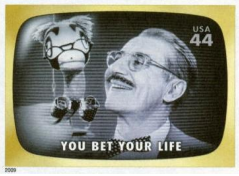

In 1954, at a time when many Americans had left the countryside for cities and suburbs, Lassie made her television debut, offering viewers a nostalgic look at rural life. Since then, one of the world's most famous dogs has been welcomed into millions of homes. By performing rescues and other feats, Lassie has become the embodiment of trust, loyalty, and friendship.

Hopalong Cassidy

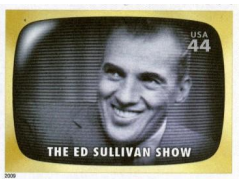

William Boyd, a leading man from the silent film era, gave life to the title character of this Western series. As originally created by novelist Clarence E. Mulford, Hopalong was a rough-talking cowboy; later, "Hoppy" was made suitable for a broader audience. He appeared on the covers of national magazines and on such items as lunchboxes, roller skates, and watches.

You Bet Your Life

This game show was built around the personality of its host, comedy star Groucho Marx, who loaded his banter with quips. A toy duck lowered from the ceiling delivered a cash prize when contestants said the week's "secret word," a common word selected in advance. The actual quiz was less the focal point than an opportunity to unleash Groucho's wit.

The Dinah Shore Show

Dinah Shore, one of the first popular singers on television and the host of several variety shows over the years, was widely known for her warmth, sincerity, and relaxed style. She is remembered for singing her sponsor's theme song ("See the U.S.A. in your Chevrolet") and for sending the audience off with a farewell kiss at the end of her show. M-wah!

The Ed Sullivan Show

Through more than 20 years on the air, host Ed Sullivan kept Broadway buffs, jazz fans, rock-and-rollers, and others entertained on Sunday nights. His long-running variety show—called Toast of the Town in its early years—provided a showcase for virtually every kind of act, from classical musicians, ballet dancers, and comedians to popular performers such as Elvis Presley, Ella Fitzgerald, and the Beatles.

Kukla, Fran and Ollie

The "Kuklapolitan" puppets—chief among them gentle Kukla, who resembled a clown, and Ollie, a mischievous dragon with one prominent tooth—were popular with adults as well as children. The humor in this largely improvised show resided not in slapstick, as in typical puppet theater, but in satire and wit. Host Fran Allison treated the puppet characters as if they were real.

The Phil Silvers Show

This subversive comedy, set at a fictional army base in Kansas, made a hero of conniving Army Master Sergeant Ernest T. Bilko, a con man who flourished even in the confines of the military. With a highly developed sense of irony and acerbic wit that kept his essential decency hidden, Bilko (Phil Silvers, shown in the stamp art) saw through the American dream.

The Lone Ranger
The year 2008 marked the 75th anniversary of the Lone Ranger. Since his radio debut in 1933, this masked hero has captivated loyal fans in books, movies, comics, and—most successfully of all—television. Clayton Moore played the virtuous if mysterious title character who was beloved for his valor, righteousness, and the jaunty command he gave his white horse: "Hi-yo, Silver, away!"

Perry Mason
In a typical episode of this long-running courtroom drama, protagonist Perry Mason and his team cleared their client of murder charges and identified the actual killer, who was usually present when exposed as the culprit. The stamp art features Mason (Raymond Burr, at right) in confrontation with his customary trial opponent, the formidable District Attorney Hamilton Burger (William Talman).

Alfred Hitchcock Presents
Film director Alfred Hitchcock presented tales of mystery and suspense in this anthology series. Its memorable theme music was based on Charles Gounod's "Funeral March of a Marionette." The balding, rotund Hitchcock introduced each episode and appeared again at the end to offer assurance that evildoers had been punished, addressing the television audience with his trademark drollery and gallows humor.

The George Burns and Gracie Allen Show
George Burns and Gracie Allen were a popular comedy team from vaudeville and radio. On television, they played versions of themselves, a married couple dealing with various complications. Allen acted the part of the zany blonde who disrupted the order represented by her husband, the "straight man" who moved in and out of the action to comment on it directly.

The Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet
Bandleader Ozzie Nelson, his wife, Harriet, and their sons, David and Ricky, played versions of themselves on a set designed to replicate their real-life home. Ozzie seemed to be around all the time, while Harriet ran things effortlessly and was always beautifully dressed. Gentle comedy arose from everyday problems and misunderstandings as their talented sons grew up and married.

The Tonight Show
The basic format of this long-running late show—comedy, music, and talk hosted by one magnetic personality—was intact from the beginning. Various hosts have entertained the show's audience over the years; the first, Steve Allen, pioneered the format and is pictured in the stamp art. Allen is remembered for his genuine wit, talent at the piano, and for interacting "live" with his studio audience.

The Twilight Zone

The Twilight Zone cautioned viewers not to be too sure of anything. Intended for an adult audience, this anthology series focused on the imaginary and the bizarre. Creator Rod Serling (pictured on the stamp) wrote many episodes and served as narrator. The stranger-than-fiction dramas were often social commentaries set against a background of fantasy and science fiction.

The Honeymooners

The Honeymooners presented a comic view of working-class life and marriage. Jackie Gleason starred as Ralph Kramden, an irascible bus driver susceptible to get-rich-quick schemes and frequently embroiled in arguments with his more levelheaded wife, Alice. Unfortunately, his longed-for jackpot always failed to materialize. Art Carney, pictured in the stamp art with Gleason, was memorable as Ralph's neighbor, friend, and foil, Ed Norton.

Felix Frankfurter
(1882-1965)

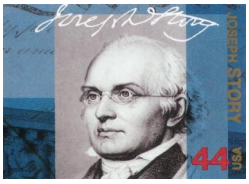

A spirited political activist and legal scholar, Felix Frankfurter was arguably one of the most enigmatic and controversial figures to serve as an associate justice. He was the Supreme Court's strongest proponent of judicial restraint and believed that judges should disregard their own social views when making decisions.

William J. Brennan, Jr.
(1906-1997)

The author of numerous landmark decisions and the inspiration behind many others, William J. Brennan, Jr., viewed the law as a force for social and political change. For more than 30 years he worked to protect and expand the rights of all citizens, especially minorities and women.

Devoted to social justice, Brandeis championed the right of all individuals to speak freely.

Joseph Story
(1779-1845)

Considered one of the nation's finest legal scholars, Joseph Story published lengthy studies about the Constitution and other legal subjects that gave shape to America's developing system of jurisprudence. His commitment to the uniform enforcement of federal regulations helped establish the preeminence of the Supreme Court.
